Epidemiology

In answering the “Did you read?” questions, select an answer from one of these, or something equally detailed.

- I didn’t even know about it.
- Didn’t look at it.
- Skimmed it.
- Read quickly.
- Read thoroughly.
- Read and reviewed.

1. Did you read “On Washing Hands”?
2. Did you read “The Mop Up”?
3. If you did both of the readings, say briefly what, if anything, you took away from the readings that is significant to you.
If you did not, say what you and I could do to help you to do these short readings. Don’t be shy. We’re trying to be effective here, not socially adept.

4. Did you read the first section of the assigned reading from “The Great Influenza,” the “Tinderbox”?
5. Did you read the second section of the assigned reading from “The Great Influenza,” called “It Begins.”
These are longer readings and, while still not technical, not as easy as the readings in Atul Gawande’s “Better.”
6. If you did the readings, say what, if anything, you took away that is significant to you.
If you did not, give some suggestions for how I could arrange the readings to help you to do them?
